Picturing Writing, a dynamic art-and-literature based approach to writing uses simple hands-on art experiences, the introduction of quality picture books, and an on-going Artists/Writers workshop to promote literacy while meeting the needs of students with diverse learning styles. With a two-decade-long history of proven effectiveness, Picturing Writing can be easily woven throughout the language arts, science, and social studies curriculum. An array of concrete visual tools such as storyboards, specially designed brainstorming sheets, and accordion folders will ensure that students create art and writing with clear literary purpose.

During this 4-day workshop, participants will learn to combine creativity, rigor, and deep thinking through a progression of art-and-literature-based mini-lessons designed to provide students with an experiential understanding of the key elements of writing. Participants will begin with the foundational Time of Day and Weather Units, which lend themselves to writing descriptive passages and poetry. They will then explore key literary elements such as sense of setting, character and plot development (problem and solution), creating an ending, and using words that paint pictures through a progression of hands-on art experiences that include simple crayon resist-based art techniques and quality picture books. After learning how to draw descriptive language from each painted image, participants will create research-based “Animals In Their Habitat” stories as a model for integrating Picturing Writing into the social studies or science curriculum.

Expected Outcomes:
- To expand teacher’s notions about literacy learning to recognize the important role which visual and kinesthetic thinking can play in supporting the development of basic literacy skills.
- To provide teachers with a new framework for facilitating the writing process.
- To provide teachers with a rich experiential learning opportunity which will encourage teachers to rethink traditional classroom practices regarding the teaching of basic skills.
- To offer concrete tools for fostering literacy for children with diverse learning styles.
- To provide a model for integrating Picturing Writing into the curriculum.

Participants will receive The Power of Pictures: Creating Pathways to Literacy Through Art book/instructional DVD by Beth Olshansky as well as 3 comprehensive teachers manuals and packet of poetry masters.
