Definition of Clean Coal Demonstration Projects

A constitutional amendment was adopted on June 14, 1994 which provides funding for clean coal demonstration projects. Clean coal demonstration projects are defined as:

- Lignite-based technologies that can be used 1) to retrofit, repower or replace existing facilities while achieving reductions of environmental emissions, or 2) to provide for future energy needs, or 3) to expand the use of lignite for non-energy needs.
- Projects including design, construction and operation of near-commercial demonstration facilities or first-of-a-kind commercial facilities.
