When choosing which card to use, it’s important to know yourself and your spending habits. If you would have difficulty handling credit or paying a credit card off each month, a debit card may be more appropriate for you. There are also situations where a debit card may not be accepted, so it may be beneficial to have both available to you.