Australian Consul-General Visits North Dakota

Australian Consul-General Elizabeth Schick and Agriculture Commissioner Doug Goehring discussed trade and other topics during a courtesy call by the consul-general. Mrs. Schick, who is based in Chicago, represents Australia in the Midwestern U.S. states. On her first visit to North Dakota, she also visited the North Dakota Trade Office, North Dakota State University, and met with Lt. Gov. Jack Dalrymple.

Agriculture Delegation from Kosovo Tours U.S.

Agriculture Commissioner Doug Goehring recently met with a delegation of six agriculture leaders from Kosovo. The delegation was interested in the process and the role commodity groups, state governments, and federal governments play in creating agricultural policies. The delegation spent time in North Dakota, Minnesota, and Washington D.C. visiting Universities, commodity groups, and governmental agencies.

Where Are You Taking Your Company?

Now is the perfect time to consider that question thoroughly. Whether you are an experienced exporter or considering it for the first time, the North Dakota Department of Agriculture (NDDA) is here to help.

We will set up one-on-one meetings with you to personally discuss options available to you. In these meetings we will go through the various programs available through NDDA and Food Export-Midwest. There are many programs available thru our office to help you learn about exporting, decide which markets are best for you, and fund some of your costs of exporting.

NDDA works closely with the Food Export Association of the Midwest USA. Through our relationship with Food Export-Midwest we are able to offer our North Dakota exporters a phenomenal set of programs and services to help make the most of your marketing efforts.

Food Export- Midwest exists to work directly through your state department of agriculture to facilitate trade between local food companies and importers around the world. These services include: export promotion, customized export assistance, and a cost-share funding program. Additional information about these and other Food Export Association services can be accessed on their Services Page.

The North Dakota Department of Agriculture will also connect you with other vital resources that will help you on your way to becoming an efficient exporter. Some of these agencies and resources we work with include:

- North Dakota Trade Office
- USDA Foreign Agricultural Service
- Export.gov
- U.S. Commercial Service
- Small Business Association’s Office of International Trade
- U.S. Export Import Bank
- Ag Export Links

Please call or email our offices today to learn how we can help you grow by exporting in 2011.
Feature Market: India

The second most populated country’s economy is rapidly expanding as it’s moving towards an open-market economy and away from a self-sufficient one.

India at a Glance:
- India has 15 official languages, the most popular being Hindi with 41% percent of the population speaking it as their first language.
- Roughly 80% of the population practice Hinduism while 13% practice Islam and a nominal amount practice Christianity and Sikhism.
- Slightly more than half of India’s workforce is in agriculture even though more than half of the output is in services such as software workers and technology services.
- Over 10% of the population is unemployed while 25% live below the poverty line.

Consumer Trends:
- Food safety is becoming more of an issue in India. 97% of Indian consumers value food safety. 30% believe that it is the government’s duty to ensure safe food, while 60% feel it’s the manufacturer’s duty, and 8% feel it’s the retailer’s duty.
- Popularity of snacking between 5pm-7pm is increasing in India, particularly among women and children. On average, 90% of women and children in metropolitan areas snack before dinner as a result of a fast-paced lifestyle.
- There is an increasing of coffee use in relation to tea use. From 2005 to 2008 there has been a 29% increase in Indians that have been introduced to coffee. Now Italian-style coffee bars can be seen on many urban street corners.

Indian Etiquette

When visiting or doing business in India it is important to keep these guidelines in mind:
- Physical contact in public between men and women is far less acceptable in India.
- Shaking hands with the opposite gender is inappropriate. Instead say “Namaste” (nah-mah-stay).
- The left hand is considered unclean. Therefore you should not eat or greet with your left hand.
- It is most proper to eat with your hands during meals. Often people eating at westernized restaurants use cutlery but if your dinner guests use their hands it is most appropriate to follow their lead.
- In the North of India, it is considered untasteful to dirty more than the first two segments of your hands. Wetter cuisine to the south makes such etiquette impossible and unexpected.
- It is customary to give a gift such as candy or flowers when invited to someone's home. Be cautionary when giving flowers as every flower has a different meaning in Indian culture.
- Most places in India disapprove of drinking alcohol, so a bottle of wine could be an offensive gift.
- Pointing is considered to be extremely rude.
- Patience is crucial when dealing with schedules that are running late or inefficient government offices.
- Bring plenty of business cards. Exchanging business cards is essential for business and social reasons India.

Need Assistance Exporting?

The Food Export Helpline ™ offers one-on-one customized export assistance at no cost to the exporter. An expert will take into consideration the unique situation that the company is in and reply with detailed advice. The helpline is created to answer any question that an exporter may have when exporting for the first time, introducing a new product, or entering a new market.

Companies can expect to receive assistance with topics such as:

- Assessing your company’s export readiness
- Analyzing your top export markets
- Helping to find and respond to trade leads
- Assisting with export pricing and quotations

- Explaining export documentation and correspondence
- Understanding NAFTA rules and regulations
- Making export payments and collections
- Providing secondary market research
- Locating export providers and referrals
- Assisting with trade event preparation

The Food Export Helpline ™ also identifies a product’s top 25 markets where the product is expected to do best in. New markets are often suggested that would not have been considered by the exporter.
