NARRATIVE: A NDDOT snowplow was traveling eastbound on Interstate 94 east of Jamestown. The weather conditions caused blowing snow that resulted in snow drifts on the Interstate. The NDDOT snowplow was blading snow in the right-hand lane and partially on the south shoulder. A 1999 Freightliner was traveling eastbound and struck the NDDOT snowplow near the passenger side causing damage to the snow blade. The Freightliner semi entered the south ditch and overturned on its passenger side. Both drivers were not injured in the crash. The crash is under investigation by the North Dakota Highway Patrol.
